INTRODUCTION

Ascorbic Acid ($C_6H_8O_6$) – $C_6H_8O_6$, or ascorbic acid, is the most common and popularly-used form of vitamin C. It has been used therapeutically in the treatment of scurvy since at least the time of Hippocrates.

This fine white powder has no discernible taste or odor and will not irritate skin or mucous membranes if properly handled and it does not degrade readily upon exposure to air, light, or heat and thus may be stored indefinitely in its original container under proper conditions.

USES

Ascorbic acid is used in a variety of food products, including bakery goods, cereal products, dairy products, soups and sauces. Ascorbic acid may also be used to fortify foods such as flour and vegetable oils.

Nutritional supplements containing ascorbic acid are available for use by people who want to supplement their diets with extra vitamin C. This product can also be used in pharmaceuticals and cosmetics because it has anti-oxidant properties that help neutralize free radicals throughout your body.

Free radicals are known to cause damage to healthy cells and tissues. Vitamin C helps your body fight off infection, boosts iron absorption and promotes collagen formation.

It also helps protect against cell damage caused by exposure to toxins like cigarette smoke, exhaust fumes and pollution. In addition, studies have shown that regular consumption of vitamin C can reduce one's risk of developing cataracts or macular degeneration later in life.

MANUFACTURING PROCESS

The manufacturing process of Sorbitol includes three processes: hydrogenation, hydrolysis and crystallization.

In first step, sorbitol is extracted from starchy materials like corn or wheat by using enzymes that are added to hot water.

Next step is conversion of sorbitol into hydrogenated glucose syrup. And at last sugar lumps are removed by crystallizing sugar syrup with vacuum evaporator. This method removes moisture from sugar crystals and makes them more pure. Sugar crystals are then separated by centrifuge machines in order to remove impurities such as sand particles etc.

The final product is white granulated powder which can be used for sweetening purpose in food industry. This powder can also be used as a thickener in food industry since it contains high amount of viscosity agent called polysaccharide which helps it maintain its structure even when mixed with other liquids such as juices etc.

AN ISO 9001 : 2015 CERTIFIED COMPANY

In addition, growing consumer awareness regarding health benefits of natural ingredients and growing health consciousness among consumers are also key factors fueling growth of global ascorbic acid powder market. Based on Application, the global Ascorbic Acid Market is segmented into Pharmaceuticals, Cosmetics, Food and Beverages and others.

AN ISO 9001 : 2015 CERTIFIED COMPANY

In 2020, the Food and Beverages segment dominated the Ascorbic Acid Market. The Dominance of the segment can largely be attributed to its natural food ingredient property that generates nutritious, clean-label food and beverages to fulfill the growing demand of health-conscious customers while it also extend the shelf-life of products.

As a result, ascorbic acid is frequently used to fortify or add a citrus flavor to fruit juices, cereals, fruit-flavored sweets, dried fruits, cured meats, and frozen meals. However Cosmetics application segment accounted for the fastest market share in 2020 and is projected to grow at a CAGR of 6.9% during the forecast period 2021-2026.

The dominance is owing to increasing usage of ascorbic acid in the skin care product as a result of its ability to protect skin cells from UV rays. Moreover Ascorbic acid acts as an antioxidant that helps to prevent the completed product deterioration from the air exposure while also helps in regulating the pH.

BENEFITS OF STARTING AN ASCORBIC ACID (POWDER) BUSINESS

If you have always had a passion for nutrition and health, starting your own business to sell ascorbic acid (powder) can be lucrative. Many people don't realize that almost every type of food contains some sort of vitamin C.

BENEFITS

Vitamin C helps strengthen our immune system and protects us from diseases. Vitamin C is water-soluble, which means we lose it each day through sweat, urine, and other bodily fluids. To stay healthy, many people need to take supplements or eat foods rich in vitamin C on a daily basis. This makes ascorbic acid (powder) a good product to sell because there is always demand for it.
