Double Wall Corrugated (DWC) Pipes

Right Time to Become A Double Wall
Corrugated (DWC) Pipes Manufacturer

Introduction

DWC (double wall corrugated) pipes are a sturdy and long-lasting option for irrigation systems. DWC pipes are constructed from two layers of high-density polyethylene (HDPE), one of which is corrugated and the other of which is smooth. Superior strength and flexibility are provided by this design, which also offers defence against damage from root incursion. If you wish to create your own sprinkler system or even utilise it as part of a bigger commercial application, DWC pipes work well in both gravity flow and pressure flow applications. Longevity is a hallmark of these pipes.

Uses/Applications

1. Double wall corrugated (DWC) pipes are best for irrigation systems that are buried underground.
2. DWC pipes are strong and corrosion-resistant due to their high-density polyethylene (HDPE) construction.
3. DWC pipes have a smooth inside surface that promotes greater water flow and less clogging.
4. To match your needs, DWC pipes come in a range of sizes and lengths.
5. Double wall corrugated pipe can be purchased in rolls or sections, making it simple to use on your own land.
6. Weep holes are constructed into the interior of a DWC pipe to help minimise pooling, stop roots from sprouting inside the pipe, and lessen clogs at low areas in the ground.

Manufacturing Process

The material used to create double wall corrugated (DWC) pipes is high-density polyethylene (HDPE). The outer layer is extruded with a contoured surface, whilst the inner layer has a smooth surface. DWC pipes are resistant to collapsing and have a high ring stiffness. They are employed in drainage and sewage systems. Double Wall Corrugated Pipes are strong pipes that can have their interior surface removed by hand, making them simple to clean. Because there are two layers separated by air spaces, which inhibit heat transfer by conduction, these pipes can also act as insulation.

Benefits Of Starting Business Of Double Wall Corrugated Pipes

One of the numerous advantages of starting your own business is the opportunity to work for yourself, set your own hours, and earn money doing what you love. Due to its strength and durability, double wall corrugated pipes are a fantastic choice for anyone wishing to launch their own business because they are ideal for a range of applications. Additionally, having your own business allows you to innovate in the market and be creative. The advantages of beginning your own Double Wall Corrugated Pipes Company are listed below.

- 1) It has a variety of uses and is an environmentally beneficial product.
- 2) There are plenty of consumers, and as more people learn about the many advantages of double wall corrugated pipes, demand is only going up.

Market Size in India

Over the projection period, it is anticipated that the market for double wall corrugated pipes will expand at a CAGR of 5.5%. (2019-2024). The necessity for affordable and long-lasting piping systems, as well as the rising need for water and wastewater management, are the main factors driving this industry. The need for double-wall corrugated pipes is rising across a variety of industries, including construction, water treatment, municipal drainage, and others, which is what is driving the market expansion.

Global Market Outlook

During the projected period of 2020-2025, the double wall corrugated pipe market is anticipated to expand at a CAGR of 5.5%. The largest market for double wall corrugated pipes is anticipated to be in the Asia-Pacific region, followed by North America and Europe.

The expanding construction sector in nations like China, India, and Japan is a major driver of the Double Wall Corrugated Pipes market in the Asia-Pacific region. The demand for power production facilities is expected to significantly increase along with infrastructure development, propelling the Double Wall Corrugated Pipes market in this area. A significant increase in agricultural production is another factor.
