Production of Paper Composite Cans
(From Paper Tube) for Packaging

www.entrepreneurindia.co
Introduction

Composite can is composed of a can body; - a top closure; and - a bottom closure. It is also sometimes called a Combi container. It has a convolute wound, spiral wound or linear draw formed rigid body, involving several layers of materials, including recycled and virgin paper, foil and plastics in various combinations, combined with a variety of adhesives and laminates, with one or both end closures permanently affixed which give the core properties such as strength, water resistance or heat resistance.
There are four main structures in the body of a Composite Can: the aluminium inner web, multipole intermediate webs, and the label web, and the membrane. They are used to pack food items such as breakfast cereals, tea, dairy products, dry fruits, spices, etc., tablets and capsules, beverages and many more items.
Composite cans market depend on packaging industry. The packaging industry in India has become increasingly sophisticated in the last decade and has attracted interest of several investors. The growth of the packaging sector in India has been ahead of the nation’s GDP growth. Today’s retail market is more challenging than ever. Over the past 29 years, the average supermarket has gone from carrying 9,000 products to nearly 47,000. Thus, due to demand it is a good project for entrepreneurs to invest.
Why Use Composite Cans?

Composite cans are attractive, functional and very economical, making them extremely versatile in meeting today’s packaging requirements.

More than an outer shell, composite cans have proven to be potent marketing tools to get your product noticed in the retail jungle. Their unique form and functionality makes them the ideal consumer-friendly packaging choice.
Market Outlook

The global composite packaging market to grow at a CAGR of 4.78% during the period 2016-2020.
Composite cans market depend on packaging industry. The packaging industry in India has become increasingly sophisticated in the last decade and has attracted interest of several investors. The growth of the packaging sector in India has been ahead of the nation’s GDP growth. Today’s retail market is more challenging than ever. Over the past 29 years, the average supermarket has gone from carrying 9,000 products to nearly 47,000. Additionally, the average consumer is exposed to over 1,000 advertising messages and impressions each day.
Despite the thousands of messages and products to choose from, the average shopper only purchases 0.7 percent of available UPCs in the supermarket over an entire year of shopping. Well-designed packaging like the composite can is a brand manager’s greatest tool to engage with the overwhelmed consumer.
Packaging should be much more than just a container for product—it should work hard at every stage of the product lifecycle: engaging shoppers, inspiring purchases, protecting the product and servicing the end user.
The consumer packaging sector in India has grown rapidly over the last two decades with significant investments in modern technology, capacity enhancement and the introduction of new products. The composite packaging market in the Americas is expected to reach USD 3.18 billion by 2020, growing at a CAGR of 3.45%.
