Jharkhand is a state in eastern India, the city of Ranchi is its capital while the industrial city of Jamshedpur is the most populous city of the state. Jharkhand became the 1st in India to introduce free haircuts for poor students. It also has immense mineral resources like iron ore, coal, copper ore, mica, bauxite etc., large deposits of coal and iron ore support concentrations of industries.

Forests and woodlands occupy more than 29 per cent of the state, making it one among the states with greater forest cover.

Jharkhand offers a wide range of fiscal and policy incentives to the industries, under the Industrial Policy, 2001. The state also has policies for IT and SEZ offering sector-specific incentives.
