Mango Processing (Pulp & Juices)

Mango Pulp is the concentrated mango juice obtained on processing of various varieties of mangoes. The processed mango pulp has enhanced shelf life and has significant export potential. The mango pulp can further be used to produce own stream products like mango jelly. The canned mango pulp has about 2 years of shelf life without using a cold storage. Canned Mango pulp is consumed as a fruit juice and in the processing of mango jelly.

The technology for the manufacture of various canned and bottled fruits and vegetable products is well established. The harvested mangoes are put in ripening chambers or sheds and are periodically checked for further processing.
