The uses of alkali metal silicates fall into two broad categories 1. as materials from which further important industrial products can be derived. This application utilizes the silicate anions as building blocks for the formation of a range of silica containing materials and represents the simple largest use of soluble silicates 2. as functional additives is a wide range of applications exploiting the varied properties of the silicates. Demand of potassium silicate is good. 10-15% demand is fulfilled by import. Demand growth of potassium silicate is 5-6%. There is good scope for the new entrepreneurs.
