Mill and straw boards are thicker, heavier and less flexible than the convention paper. The thickness of board is the thickness of a single sheet board measured under specified conditions. It is usually expressed in micrometers. Mill/straw board, grey board and other special varieties of boards are used for various packing processes for packing and protecting innumerable consumer and industrial goods. For above and many other reasons, the demand for straw board and mill board is increasing every day with increasing population of the world. It is consumed for various purposes. Besides this huge internal demand, there is a great export potential also. It will be profitable for the new entrants to invest in this project.
