Spices industry has been a trup card in the hands of India since centuries. It was spice trading which encouraged East India Company to come to India and it is the spice trade which is now making India’s export trade grow every year. Spices industry consist of spice growers, bulk traders, spice processors, packing unit, trade channel/retailers finally catering to the consumers or exporting to channels or consumers abroad. The market is vast like ocean and hence the scope for many new units exists, although, the new units will have competition from both branded as well as unbranded sector. There is good scope for new entrepreneurs.
