Refined vegetable oil is considered to be high quality edible oil because of its non-cholesterol properties. Its main use in the world is in cooking, pharmaceuticals, bakery goods & other edible products. In refined vegetable oil, the term "refining" is applied to the operation of pretreatment and de-acidification or neutralization, its complete process involves bleaching & deodorization. The oil is basically produced from four different seeds which are edible in nature. The demand of refined vegetable oil is increasing day by day because of its large consumption in bakery & pharmaceuticals.
